

In the last days of America's storied existence secularists gained control over the institutions that shaped the nation's values. Gradually, all ideas regardless of their origin were deemed co-equal. Rights were diminished to self definition and the segmenting of society around collective grievances became government's primary tool by which tyranny found its hold. Absolutes were ridiculed, relativism was elevated to prominence and lauded by elites. The relationship between liberty and faith was eroded, giving way to secularism. During this time a new band of patriots found footing and began the process of restoring the republic to its place of strength predicated on the inseparable link between liberty and faith. Welcome to iVoteAmerica.

In CONGRESS,
July 4, 1776

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.

A Swarm of Lies

Keeping Truth out of Our Minds

Donald Teel, Editor
September 30, 2016

Each historical era in the time line of man's existence has perpetuated its own untruth. Lies.

America's political artists, disguised as representatives, are masters in the art of both willful deceit and the creation of hollow space.

In the masterful work, The Screwtape Letters by C.S. Lewis, we find the demon stating, "It is funny how mortals always picture us as putting things into their minds: in reality, our best work is done by keeping things out."

Parents often teach their children that lying has two forms, the first being overt and the second being covert.

The deception of the electorate is predicated on the dual demonic practice of putting things in and keeping things out.

Avoidance, detour, and no-speak are the attributes of this government.

Ours is a political environment where lies are effective when generated in a vacuum of evidence. The very best lies are told by keeping things out.

Keeping things out of our consciousness is its own form of duplicity. Putting things in and keeping things out erodes our sensibilities. The demons of deceit derail our ability to filter and separate ethical and unethical information.

Moral focus, personal and collective discipline, and our ability to parse truth is washed out by putting things in (what tyranny wants us to hear and know) and keeping things out (what anarchy wants to hide).

Those things kept out of our minds by the ruling elite are the inner workings of the state's Utopian values expressed in reams of policy and regulation.

Modern government has become increasingly dependent on its ability to mix its paint until gray is the only color.

Putting gray things in and keeping color out works tyranny's magic.

These demonic machinations have given rise to a hoard of persons who are perfectly willing to leave well enough alone. We do not know what we do not know, and we do not want to know what we do not know. Leave us alone!

But there is no leaving us alone. There is only putting things in and keeping things out. We are overcome by a swarm of lies.

Keeping truth out will allow tyranny to come in.

REDISTRIBUTION. Permission is granted for reprint of this article in its entirety with credits. Complete quotes may be used. For information contact ivoteamerica@gmail.com

US CONSTITUTION
Amendments 1, 2, 10

First Amendment

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Second Amendment

A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

Tenth Amendment

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

