

In the last days of America's storied existence secularists gained control over the institutions that shaped the nation's values. Gradually, all ideas regardless of their origin were deemed co-equal. Rights were diminished to self definition and the segmenting of society around collective grievances became government's primary tool by which tyranny found its hold. Absolutes were ridiculed, relativism was elevated to prominence and lauded by elites. The relationship between liberty and faith was eroded, giving way to secularism. During this time a new band of patriots found footing and began the process of restoring the republic to its place of strength predicated on the inseparable link between liberty and faith. Welcome to iVoteAmerica.

In CONGRESS,
July 4, 1776

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.

Usque ad Terminum

Our Endpoint is Now In Site

Donald Teel, Editor
July 8, 2016

Our Republic has endured multiple threats to its survival and by the providence of the Almighty, all foes have been vanquished.

Magnified complexity now gives rise to national doubt and insecurity, forcing us to ask, "Have we reached the endpoint?"

Conservatives recognize the moral and spiritual chasm that is being cut between our past sense of national strength and the contemporary and dominate voices of secular humanism.

Secular man positions himself and his reason at the nucleus of a self-made universe, one where the co-existence of conflicting opinions ultimately delivers a form of individual and collective despair.

Although man strikes the pose of self-assurance, the evidence of decline shows itself in the tone of social disorder and our inability to maintain Aristotle's civil society.

In this climate, legal review and opinion is subjected to a new dogma where the rationale of any decision is regarded as co-equal with and acceptable to any other. This is secular humanism, this is tyranny. This is man on his own, left to drift without the security of attachment to predictable mores.

Security, whether individual or corporate, can only be created initially and sustained in perpetuity by certain anchors, adopted by and accepted within the plural society.

After a century of grinding, progressive influence places Constitutional and cultural conservatives on the cusp of eradication, being overwhelmed by and giving reluctant consent to the equality of secular humanism to that of true spirituality.

This Republic, having been founded and sustained upon the bedrock belief in a God who is there and who speaks, now pays homage to the mere voices of little men with enlarged egos, whose speech is shallow and whose thoughts are feeble, being unable by their human delusion to sustain the durability of this nation.

Members of our debt-ridden, pandering government boil over with pride, power and pretense, being phony almost to the person. This government is a confederation of liars, their product being a sea of doubt, suspicion and angst where we all thrash about drowning others to save ourselves. Our plight gives the elites additional opportunity.

Within this cauldron of social and political decay, we must be found asking, "Usque ad terminum?"

REDISTRIBUTION. Permission is granted for reprint of this article in its entirety with credits. Complete quotes may be used. For information contact ivoteamerica@gmail.com

US CONSTITUTION
Amendments 1, 2, 10

First Amendment

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Second Amendment

A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

Tenth Amendment

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

